Balcony profiles with Colorpan surface

Balcony profiles with Colorpan surface are manufactured with great care using carefully selected materials. The manufacturing process and selection of the raw materials are based on over 35 years of experience in the production and use of WERZALIT products outdoors.

The core of the balcony profiles is made of industrial timber that originates in Germany from PEFC-certified forestry companies. The Colorpan surface consists of a high-quality coating with especially light-fast pigments that have proven themselves in outdoor use for decades. Exclusively water-soluble coating systems are used. No solvents are used.

Through the controlled high-temperature drying of the acrylate system used, the mechanical and physical properties are further optimised to achieve high resistance to scratches and abrasion. The special material properties of the coating ensure high weathering resistance and outstanding resistance to embrittlement, even under high UV exposure and extreme weathering. The light fastness corresponds completely to level 8 according to DIN EN ISO 105-B02.
